ing quite a lot of ual" says Myers in the type of program ll be preparing for rogram. We'll also be working on some non-denominational sacred music and many show tunes."

Accompaniment for the Chorus is also provided by FFA members. This year two FFA members have been selected to share the duties of accompanist. Frederick D. McClure, of San Augustine, Texas, who was Drum Major for the National FFA Band last year, is one of the pianists. He will share the responsibility with Dennis W. Good, of Paola, Kansas. The accompanists will join the Chorus when they are not busy at the piano. They are selected on the basis of their application and a personal interview with Director Myers.

An experienced Choir Director, Myers has directed the National FFA Chorus for three years and has had 16 years of experience directing the Indiana FFA Chorus at the State Convention. Myers has spent a lifetime working with youth groups in music, having been Purdue University's Agriculture Extension Music Program Director for several years. In this capacity, he worked with both 4-H and FFA youth groups as well as with community adult groups.

"It's a great experience for me," says Myers speaking of his duties as director of the National FFA Chorus. "I think it is really terrific that a group of young men and women can come together and be so excited about singing. They come out to Kansas City prepared to work hard, yet they have a great time and they take such pride in their singing."

Myers will be assisted by W. T. Johnson, Assistant Supervisor of Agricultural Education, A & T College, Greensboro, N. C., and Walter W. Paxson, a vocational agriculture teacher at Woodlan High School, Woodburn, Indiana.
